Multiple Financed Properties Program

Fannie Mae/Freddie Mac

Applying the Multiple Financed Property Policy to DU (Fannie Mae Up to 10 Properties Only) Continued

- If the number of financed properties field is completed, DU will use that as the number of financed properties. The underwriter must complete this field with the number of financed one-to four-unit residential properties (including the subject transaction) for which the borrower(s) are personally obligated.
- If the number of financed properties field is not provided, DU will use the number of residential properties in the real estate owned (REO) section that include a mortgage payment, or that are associated with a mortgage or HELOC in the liabilities section that include a mortgage payment, or that are associated with a mortgage or HELOC in the liabilities section of the loan application, as the number of financed properties.
- If the number of financed properties field and the REO information was not provided, DU will use the number of mortgages and HELOC's disclosed in the liabilities section of the loan application as the number of financed properties.
- When none of the information above is provided on the loan application, DU will use the number of mortgages and HELOCs disclosed on the credit report as the number of financed properties.
  - Note: In order to account for the subject property, DU will add "1" to the number of financed properties on purchase and construction transactions when the REO section, number of mortgages on the application, or number of mortgages on the credit report are used as the number of financed properties.
- After determining the number of financed properties, DU will use that value to assess the eligibility of the loan, including the minimum credit score require for seven (7) to ten (10) financed properties, and the minimum required reserves the underwriter must verify.
- DU will issue a message informing the underwriter of the number of financed properties that DU used and where that information was obtained (Number of Financed Properties field, REO section, number of mortgages on application, or number of mortgages on credit report).
- If DU used the information provided in the number of financed properties field or in the REO section as the number of financed properties, and that information is inaccurate, the underwriter must update the data and resubmit the loan casefile to DU.

Multiple Financed Properties Program

Fannie Mae/Freddie Mac

Applying the Multiple Financed Property Policy to DU (Fannie Mae Up to 10 Properties Only) Continued

- If DU used the number of mortgages and HELOCs on the loan application or credit report as the number of financed properties, and that number is inaccurate, the underwriter must provide the correct number in the number of financed properties field, or complete the Real Estate Owned section of the loan application and resubmit the loan case file to DU.

Exception
 Du Refi Plus mortgage loans are exempt from the multiple financed properties policies. See DU Refi Plus guidelines in the Quick Look manual for additional information.

Limits on the Number of Financed Properties	If the mortgage loan being delivered to Fannie Mae is secured by the borrower’s principal residence, there are no limitations on the number of other properties that the borrower will have financed. Simultaneous Second Home or Investment Property Transactions

If PBM is processing multiple second home or investment property applications simultaneously, the same assets may be used to satisfy the reserve requirements for both mortgage applications. Reserves are not cumulative for multiple applications.

Example: PBM is simultaneously processing two refinance applications for two investment properties owned by the borrower. The application for property A requires reserves of $5,000.00. The application for property B requires reserves of $10,000. Because the reserves are covering the same properties, the underwriter does not have to verify $15,000 in reserves, but only those required per each application.
